Description of work

Septic Blue was called to the property to service and evaluate the septic system as part of a home sale.

Upon arrival, the homeowner stated that the septic tank had not been pumped in approximately 14 years. The homeowner was informed that the septic tank is located adjacent to the pump tank below ground level and that the system did not have access risers installed. It was explained that risers are recommended to provide convenient access for routine septic tank maintenance and for cleaning the effluent filter, which should be serviced every three to six months.

After locating the septic tank, an excavation charge was applied due to the excessive depth of the tank. Both the front and rear access openings were excavated.

Upon opening the septic tank, a heavy accumulation of sludge was found in the front compartment, with solids extending over the inlet (mainline) pipe. Due to the excessive sludge, a crust buster was required to properly agitate and remove the solids. Both compartments of the septic tank were completely pumped.

The building sewer line was hydro-jetted to remove accumulated debris and restore proper flow. A significant amount of material was removed from the mainline, and the line was verified to be flowing properly upon completion of the service.

The effluent filter was inspected and replaced with a new filter. The homeowner was instructed to clean the filter every three to six months to prevent clogging, protect the drainfield, and maintain proper septic system performance.

To improve future accessibility and simplify routine maintenance, new access risers were installed on both the front and rear openings of the septic tank. These risers provide convenient access for periodic septic tank pumping, typically every three years depending on household size and usage, as well as easy access for routine effluent filter cleaning.

Upon completion of the work, the homeowner confirmed that the septic tank had been completely serviced and expressed satisfaction with the placement of the risers, the installation of the lids, and the restoration of the work area. All pricing was reviewed and approved by the homeowner prior to the work being performed.
