One of the things we've loved most about this home is the craftsmanship throughout. The fireplace mantle is especially meaningful - it was made from a pecan tree dating back to the 1800s, salvaged from a family farm in Erwin, NC. The kitchen island is built from old-growth red oak sourced by a local arborist, then milled, planed, and finished by a Raleigh craftsman. That same wood was used for the bench seat and vanity shelf, which helps tie everything together. The tin ceiling in the powder room is another detail that adds a lot of character, and there's even a wall safe for your important documents!

The house gets great natural light, which makes it feel warm and inviting all day. Having the primary suite and laundry/mud room on the first floor has been incredibly convenient. In the kitchen, we've really enjoyed the pot filler and custom hood. Upstairs, there are two great flex spaces - one bonus room with a TV hookup that can be used as an exercise room, and another 4th bedroom/gathering area with a wet bar, mini fridge, and access to the Charleston style front porch, perfect for relaxing or entertaining.

The backyard is easy to maintain but still a nice place to unwind, and the tankless water heater has been a great everyday upgrade.

We've also really appreciated the location - there's a coffee shop, smoothie spot, and bar just a 5 minute walk away (with more coming soon), and downtown, Brookside, and the Person Street area are all about a 20 minute walk. The greenway and Oakwood Cemetery are also nearby, which has been great for walking, running, or biking. It's been the perfect balance of being close to everything while still feeling like a quiet place to come home to.
